LAST YEAR'S OVERCOAT

is nothing but a reefer compared with the long "full back" this season. There are many men who spend double what they can afford to for clothes. If so-and so's name is'nt on the back of their necks, inside their coat collars, they don't think life's worth living. That's all rot. We'll put you in style for $15.00 as satisfactory as though you paid your tailor $25.00. We hit the mark every time with those LONG FULL-BACK OVERCOATS; cheaper ones, $10.00; but our $15 is a point to survey from.

POEMS HERE AT HOME, by James Whitcomb Riley, with pictures by E. W. Kemble. New York—The Century Co. On sale at HUNTER'S Book Store, 10 King street west

Riley is ast growing in favor with the American public. There are good judges who consider him their greatest living poet. Certain it is that no writer, past or present, has ever exceeded his ability in portraying certain phases of country character with which he is most familiar. His dialect is exquisite and perfect in its kind. This volume by the Century company contains many old favorites and some new pieces. Several of the best poems had appeared in the Century magazine. All admirers of the Hoosier poet will desire to add this new volume to their collection.

—Would-Be Purchaser—How much for this picture? Artist—The price is £1,000. "Why, man alive, you expect to be paid for your work as if you had been dead four or five hundred years."

—"Moriarity, it's home you should be going. You're drunk." "Bedad, but O'm not, sor." "Ye're drunk, Oi say." "Oi'm a liar, then, Phelim O'Reilly?" "No. Ye're jist dhrunk." "Ye wouldn't say that if Oi was sober." "If ye was sober ye wouldn't deny it."

—"I want to be an angel!"
Our cook sang on her way
To start the fire with kerosene—
She became one that day.

—Little Charlie—Papa, do angels see what's going on in the world. Papa—I suppose so; they're often pictured as weeping.

—Boston woman—Oh, I do so love the fields of our New England farms. New York girl—Why? Boston woman—Because they are so cultivated, you know.

—It takes four years for a college to turn out a good student, but it frequently turns out a bad student in less than three months.

—Mamma—When that boy threw stones at you why didn't you come and tell me instead of throwing them back? Little son—Tell you! Why, you couldn't hit a barn door.

—Mrs. Gushly—Dear me, the new minister is such an interesting young man. Mrs. Winks—What did he talk about when he called? Mrs. Gushly—I told him all about the baby's new tooth.

—"The doctors all pronounce it nervous prostration." "What had she done to bring it about—overwork?" "Yes; she's been trying to decide on a name for the baby."

COMING.

The chief attraction of a literary nature booked for Hamilton this season is that of James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier poet, and Douglas Sherley, the southern author, who will appear in readings from their own works, in the Grand opera house, on Feb. 2.

Mr. Riley has been termed the sweet singer, who with his magic lyre has touched the hearts of countless thousands; whose words and works are known and loved wherever the English language is spoken; whose lines are limned with laughter and pathos; who personates his own creations, so that we see them before us in flesh and blood; the Burns of America; the poet in the plenitude of his powers.

Mr. Sherley is a stranger to the platform in Canada, but his appearance will likely be hailed with delight. The best students of American literature look upon him as the polished romancer of the south, who has flashed a searchlight into new fields and reproduced the results in colors that charm; whose wit is as infectious as a summer's day; whose versatility, combined with that of Mr. Riley, completes one of the most enjoyable entertainments known to the lyceum or the stage.

The public appearances of these twin spirits of genius have been highly appreciated in the few prvileged cities where they have appeared jointly, and great enthusiasm always prevailed.

—"What are you crying for, Fritz?" "Because my brothers have a holiday and I haven't." "But why haven't you a holiday, too?" "Because, I'm not old enough to go to school yet."

—Mrs. Newman—What made you tell me he was the carver of his own fortune, when he got every penny he has by marrying an heiress? Newman—Humph! He had to cut out a half a dozen fellows to get her, didn't he?
